MEET A SCIENTOLOGIST EXPLORES THE WORLD OF HIGH-TECH MINING WITH GREG KINGDON

Los Angeles, CA – August 13, 2019 – Scientology Network's MEET A SCIENTOLOGIST, the weekly series spotlighting the everyday lives of Scientologists from around the world and all walks of life, announces an episode featuring mining maintenance innovator and entrepreneur Greg Kingdon.

MEET A SCIENTOLOGIST airs Tuesdays at 8 p.m. ET/PT on Scientology Network.

At the urging of a business associate, Greg Kingdon walked into a copper mine in Australia one day and mining companies around the world have been benefiting ever since. With a bit of ingenuity and a lot of hard work, Greg developed a system that cuts down time for maintenance, saving mining companies millions in lost productivity.

ABOUT GREG KINGDON

Raised on a farm in a remote corner of Western Australia, Greg Kingdon learned resourcefulness and self-sufficiency at a young age—qualities that would serve him well later in life. After leaving school at 16, he struck out as a contractor for various businesses, eventually landing large contracts with the Australian government. An associate asked Greg if he could help his fledgling mill relining business, a company that replaced the 2-ton plates inside the giant cylinders used to crush mined rock so the minerals can be extracted. Greg quickly devised a method to cut the time it takes to reline a cylinder in half, saving mines somewhere around $2 million for every maintenance cycle. Greg went on to start Kaltech International, which has grown into the world's premier relining company, with offices in the US, Canada, Australia and Mongolia.
